Goodbye Seoul will be at BitSummit from July 19-21 as part of the Korea Creative Content Agency (KOCCA) pavilion

SEOUL - July 19, 2024 - NEOWIZ and JINO Games debuted a new gameplay trailer for Goodbye Seoul ahead of its presence at BitSummit in Kyoto, Japan. The trailer features an extended look at the narrative-driven puzzle adventure game. BitSummit attendees can also get hands-on experience at the Korea Creative Content Agency (KOCCA) pavilion during the independent game development festival.

Goodbye Seoul was selected as one of six outstanding Korean indie titles featured at KOCCA's first BitSummit appearance. The government agency oversees the advancements of Korean creative content and covers a wide range of creative industries, including gaming, animation, character licensing, music, and more.

“Since I started development on Goodbye Seoul in 2021, my vision was to tell a universally relatable and humanistic story that also embodied the vibrant culture I grew up with in Korea,” said Kim Jinho, CEO, JINO Games. “Each event I’ve attended alongside the Korea Creative Content Agency has been a rewarding opportunity to share this story with more people before our launch.”

To support the ongoing development of the indie title, NEOWIZ and JINO Games published a demo experience for PC users on the game's Steam store page. The demo provides the first fifteen minutes of gameplay and the start of Rion's journey.

NEOWIZ representatives will also be in attendance at BitSummit as the publisher continues to search for talented developers and creators. To learn more about NEOWIZ's publishing initiatives, please contact neowiz\_team@zebrapartners.net
